William Hinshaw Heard in Recital tre played with rare skill, and there were enthusiastic demands for an encore after the prelude to "Lohengrin" was superbly rendered. It was one f the best concerts of the season. of German Lieder "FAUST" SUNG TO CAPACITY;

American Baritone of the Mamerican baritones of the Metropolitan Opera Company, save a recital at Carnegle Hall yesterday afternoon. There was a large and friendly audience, the boxes being exceptionally well filled. The programme was German from first to last. Schuman, Schubert, Hugo Brueckler and Adelph Jensen were represented, each his assparate group. To Mr. Hinshaw's credit it must be saki that his selections was provided in the standard of the saki that his selections was solved appeal to us, but she has arrived, and next season is bound to share in public favor come is cause for wonder.

It's all very well for Julia Culp and Mens Gerhardt to stick to German thing more from one native born. There are songs by American and Engcomposers of our own generation well worth singing and well worth caring, besides a host of old Engcompoun and David Bispham, for inhis American associates, both men who goes to hear Walter Damrosch's "Cyrano" to-night will be assured of produces it well, but it lacks variety. At the end of an hour and a half one was impressed with the idea that an nferior singer might have proved more ng. One thing to Mr. Hinshaw's credit is his modesty. Several times he might have responded to the applause with a repetition, or an added number; but he did not yield. Only at the end did he give an extra song. Some day I shall hope to record in this column that a singer, or a player, has refused absolutely to add to the printed programme. Alas! the walt is long. There was a seriousness approaching the sombre in Mr. Hinshaw's selections, such as in Schumann's "Himmel und Erde" and "Die Huette," and in Schubert's "Der Atlas" and "Fahrt Zum Hades," that Brueckler's "Lind duftig nacht die Majennacht" and "Verrath" did not dispel. That Jensen's what should have been intensely humorous "Altassyrisch" was not more effecrather than of Mr. Hinshaw. Perhaps the most interesting selection was Jensen's "Die Maulbronner Fuge." Richard lagemann of the Metropolitan Opera Company at the plane was an admirable accompanist.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
